More Domo Japanese Noodles

All lunch noodle dishes are served with 3 country side dishes.

My name is "Tsukemen" and yes, I am a ramen noodle too! My friends udon and soba can also be "Tsukemen"! Usually ramen noodles are served in a hot soup, but in Japan there is another popular way of eating noodles. To keep the noodles from getting soggy in the soup, ramen, udon or soba noodles are also delicious, fresh boiled, quick rinsed and serve with a variety of hot dipping broths on the side!

This style of Tsukemen noodle dish is very trendy now in Japan.

You already know how to eat sushi... now you need to know about Japanese Tsukemen noodles.
